INTRODUCTION.

In the Introduction to the original edition of the "Record of the Family of Levi Kimball and Some of His Descendants," published in 1861, the compiler barely mentioned his paternal ancestors and, it may be assumed, at that time he knew almost nothing about them. At a later period he received a communication from his cousin, John Cleveland Darbee, a native of Groton, Conn., but then residing in Erie Co., N. Y., who rendered valuable assistance in gathering data which was published in 1866 in a little volume entitled "Record of the Family of Jedediah Darbee." After the lapse of a few years the entire work was revised, and the two volumes were bound together.

The arrangement of the new edition is the same as that of the original. I have followed that plan in order to carry out the idea that this is not a new Record, but merely an old one with additions and a few corrections. It is offered in memory of my Grandfather, Levi Darbee—an imperfect memorial, perhaps, with missing links here and there throughout the work, and possibly errors in dates and names, a not uncommon fault of genealogical records in general.

That the names of many family connections are not recorded is much regretted, yet it may be considered pardonable in view of the fact that it was found to be impossible to get into communication with persons who could give information concerning them. Correspondence failing, there is but one other way to obtain desired information, and that would entail heavy expense and be the work of years; necessitating travel from place to place and the inspection of old town and church records, in many instances the only sources of information. Such thorough research falls within the sphere of work of the professional genealogist, and is too ambitious an undertaking for a mere amateur.

Any information relating to families with abbreviated records will be welcomed, and may be made use of in a future revision, should some family connection of another generation see fit to take up the work.

To those who have so kindly and courteously assisted me I wish to express my grateful appreciation and thanks. Their willing co-operation has made pleasant what otherwise would have been a burdensome task.

THE KIMBALLS.

Richard Kemball, wife and child, sailed from Ipswich, Eng., in 1634, in the ship "Elizabeth," fifty-five passengers all told. We are informed that, before sailing—

"These p'sons above named tooke Oathe of Allegiance and Supremacy, at his Ma'ts Custome House in Ipswich, before us his Ma'ties Officers, according to the order of the Lords and others of his Ma'ts most Hono'ble Privy Council: this XIJth of November, 1634.

Ipswich Custome House.

Phil. Browne,

Theo. Clere, Sec.

p'r Custor.

Edw: Man, Compt."

From "The Founders of New England"—Drake.

The family settled first in Watertown and afterwards in Ipswich, Mass. Richard was twice married, his first wife being Ursula Scott and his second, Margaret Dow. He had eleven children, all born in America except John, who was born in Rattlesdon, County of Suffolk, Eng., in 1631. All of Richard's children grew up and were married—"For nearly three hundred years their descendants have obeyed literally the injunction to 'multiply and replenish the earth.' It has been a most prolific race; its branches extend in all directions and its members have become as numerous as the leaves. The Kimballs have long been plentiful in Ipswich, Mass., and from there they have spread to all parts of New England and New York; many are in the great West, a few in the South, and some have gone to the Dominion of Canada. Nearly every section of the North American Continent has its representative of this Puritan stock. Some of the name remained in England when Richard and family came to America. The family has never been numerous there and is almost unknown outside of the County of Suffolk. As a family, it has not been distinguished by men who were leaders in thought. Not many of its members have been noted in the political world or in professional or literary work, but they have figured more largely in the common walks of life. They have been looked upon, in the communities where they have lived, as reliable men and women and, commencing with Richard and his sons, they have frequently been placed in positions of trust in the town and church government in the places where they resided. In business circles, they have been exceptionally strong. They have loved the activities and excitement of commercial life, and have very generally been successful as business men."—History of the Kimball Family, by Leonard A. Morrison and Stephen P. Sharples.

John Kimball, son of Richard, changed the spelling of the family name by substituting an "i" for an "e," and all of his descendants appear to have followed suit, none of them now spelling the name as it was spelled by their English ancestors. John married Mary Bradstreet about 1655. They had thirteen children, one of whom was named John, born 1668, who married Sarah Goodhue, of Watertown, Mass., on December 2, 1692. In 1726 the family moved from Ipswich to Stonington, Conn., thence, a year later, to Preston, Conn. John's children were:—John, Joseph, Mary, David, Nathan, Isaac, Jacob, Abigail and Sarah.

Jacob Kimball, the father of Levi, was born in Ipswich on October 12, 1706, and died in Preston, Conn., May 4, 1788. He was married three times, his first wife being Mary Parke; the names of the other two are not recorded. His children, all born in Preston, Conn., were:

Hannah, born Mar. 18, 1730; married Zebulon Parrish, Sept. 15, 1748; died Jan. 18, 1828.

Lucy, born Jan. 1, 1732; married Joshua Meech, Dec. 11, 1754; died Jan. 16, 1829.

NOTE.—From the record of the places of birth of his children, it seems that grandfather, after removing to Orange Co., N. Y., returned to Connecticut, and again to Orange Co. In 1778, he removed into Pennsylvania, and but a day or two before the massacre at Wyoming he was in its immediate vicinity. From some cause (which I have not been able to ascertain) he was induced to return to the State of New York. In 1796 he, together with my father, settled in Rockland (then Delaware), Sullivan Co., N. Y. At the time, that section of the state was almost a wilderness, but few settlers having located. There were no roads. To reach the place they had to pick their way over mountains, through ravines and along the beds of streams. They purchased contiguous farms, at the junction of two streams, the Beaverkill and Willowmack, on which they resided until removed by death.

My grand-parents lived to see all their children married and most of them with families. At their death, all were living but one, Oliver.

NOTE from the original edition by Levi Darbee—"Samuel Darbee, my father, was the youngest child of Jedediah and Lucretia Cleveland Darbee. They had seven children, five sons—Jedediah, Azariah, Chester, John and Samuel; two daughters, Cecilia and Abigail. Samuel's father died Sept. 4, 1769, aged 40 years; Chester died at Shaftesbury, Vt., during the Revolutionary War; John was a physician. He removed to New Jersey and died in 1795, at Suckasunny Plains; his brother, Jedediah, died Oct. 9, 1828, in the 72d year of his age; Cecilia died Oct. 12, 1844, aged 89 years. I have no information respecting the other brother and sister.

Samuel was left an orphan at an early age, and was apprenticed to a clothier. In 1792 he removed to Chester, Orange Co., and in 1796 to Rockland, Sullivan Co. (then Neversink, Delaware Co.), N. Y. Up to this time, I believe, he worked as a journeyman at his business during the season of cloth dressing, and as a farmer the rest of the year. He purchased a farm in Rockland and built a fulling and dyeing establishment. He continued the cloth dressing business, in connection with farming, until a few years prior to his death (1826). In the meantime, the establishment of cloth manufacture had, in a measure, ruined this part of his business. For many years, however, his was the only establishment of the kind in that section, and it was patronized by persons living at a distance of thirty and forty miles. By untiring industry and perseverance he succeeded in acquiring a competency, notwithstanding the large family for which he provided. He indulged the hope that he should be able to pass his declining years without the constant toil and anxiety to which he had hitherto been subjected. But, alas! his anticipations were never realized. On the 20th of April, 1826, in passing over a dugway, with a load of hay, the wagon was overturned; he was precipitated down an embankment upon the rocks in the bed of a stream, twenty feet below, and instantly killed. My mother survived him twenty-five years. She died Dec. 15, 1851. Both were early connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church and continued exemplary and devoted members.

FAMILY GATHERING.—On Sept. 1, 1853, the surviving heirs, with one exception (Augustus Dodge) met at the family homestead now owned by Chester, the youngest child. On the day following, all were seated at one table. There were 18 present—5 sons, 5 daughters, 3 sons-in-law, and 5 daughters-in-law, viz.: All the sons—John, William T., Levi, Samuel and Chester; daughters, Lucretia, Lucinda, Abigail, Hannah and Catharine; sons-in-law,

IN MEMORIAM.

Levi Darbee, grandson of Samuel and Hannah Kimball Darbee, was born in Rockland, April 8, 1803, and died in Brooklyn, May 21, 1879.

He was one of the pioneer settlers of the Williamsburgh section, taking up his residence there long before the village was chartered as a city. At the time of his death the following Obituary was published in the Brooklyn Daily Times: "Levi Darbee, one of the oldest residents of the Eastern District, died yesterday morning at the ripe old age of 76 years. The deceased was born in Rockland, Sullivan Co., this state. In 1821 he was married to Miss Jenima Hermance, at Kingston, where he resided for a year after his marriage, being engaged in the printing business. About 1824, Mr. Darbee removed to Rockland, his birth place, thence to New York City, Monticello, Unadilla and finally, about 1834, to Williamsburgh.

“What is now a populous section of the city was then a small village of but a few hundred inhabitants. Mr. Darbee bought out the only printing office in the place, which had been established for two years, and began the publication of the first newspaper in Williamsburgh, known as The Williamsburgh Gazette. Its publication was continued as a weekly until 1849, when it was changed to a semi-weekly. In 1850, it was made a daily, and was continued as such until 1854, when its publication was suspended.

“Mr. Darbee continued in the printing business until six years ago, when failing health compelled his retirement.

“During the earlier period of his residence, Mr. Darbee was connected with a number of prominent public movements and was, a number of years ago, Postmaster of our local office. He was among those who organized the Eastern District Hospital and Dispensary, and was for many years a Trustee of the institution. Mr. Darbee was always public spirited and ready at all times to do anything that would benefit the community in which he lived. In the days when he was active in public life, he was well known and commanded the confidence and respect of every one, and our best citizens were numbered among his devoted friends. For a number of years he has been in failing health, which forced him into retirement.

“Mr. Darbee leaves a widow and eight children: Edgar, Abraham, Levi, Samuel, William, Mrs. Joseph Powell, Mrs. John Elwood Powell, and Mrs. Charles Mills. In the family of which he was the head, it is noteworthy that this is the first death in forty-nine years.”

. . . "These pioneers who were by turns lumbermen, farmers and hunters, were a robust, jovial race of men. When at their work they labored with might and main; when indulging in their favorite sports, they were fearless and full of fun, and apparently enjoyed nothing more than forest life; but there was one thing they loved more and that was the home circle. Samuel Darbee, Jr., the friend and companion of Peter Stewart, was very fond of his family and particularly of his children. With them he was seldom, if ever, austere or arbitrary. He was their companion, friend and mentor." —Quinlan's Hist. of Sullivan Co.

NOTE by Mrs. Leonard Thompson Baker, nee McGauley: "My father, Peter McGauley, was the son of a well-to-do land owner in Ireland and was the first of his family to come to America. He came in the early twenties of the present century, with the intention of seeing the country and then returning; but after traveling two or three years he settled in South Westerloo, N. Y., became a successful miller and married. Later, his health failing, he settled on a farm in Greenville, N. Y. In 1854 he emigrated to Fond du Lac, Wis. On the journey the steamer carrying their effects was burned and all their household goods were lost. Five months after they arrived, he died of malarial fever, leaving mother with nine young children on a new, heavily timbered farm. Soon after, her oldest son sprained his ankle and, a little later, accidentally shot his arm, thus depriving her of his help and leaving her to rely on two younger boys, one thirteen and the other eleven years of age. Her strength of character and perseverance enabled her to overcome her difficulties, and her children became respected Christian men and women. Her last days were spent in the old home, where she died, loved and respected by all who knew her.

CATHARINE MARCELLA BAKER."

APPENDIX

Record of the Family of Jedediah Darbee and some of his Descendants

The Darbee genealogy cannot be traced, connectedly, further back than 1729, the year of birth of the first Jedediah. Only fragmentary records prior to that date give information relating to the family. That the first settlers came from England may be considered beyond dispute.

Samuel C. Derby, of the Ohio State University, gives it as his opinion that the name is derived from the county and town of Derby, Eng. He writes as follows: "I find the following Derby, Darby, Darbe, etc., families in North America:

- (1) John and Richard Darby, of Plymouth, Mass., who came from Dorset, England, about 1636.
- (2) Francis Darby, of Rhode Island, whose son removed to Southhold, L. I.
- (3) Francis Darby, of Maryland.
- (4) Edward Darby, of Weymouth, Mass., who married Susanna Hooke.
- (5) Hugh Darby, of Marblehead, Mass., 1670.
- (6) William Darby, a soldier at Blackpoint, Maine, 1675.
- (7) John Darby, of Marblehead, Mass.
- (8) Roger Darby, of Salem, who came from Topsham, Devonshire, Eng.
- (9) Thomas Darby, or Daby, at Salem, Mass., 1683, and later, is supposed to have resided in Stow, Mass.

It is my opinion that the Darbys of the Weymouth line moved on westward into the N. E. corner of Connecticut (Windham, Tolland and New London counties). Before the Revolution, one family, Jonathan Darby, went up the Connecticut to Orford, N. H., and Jona Darby served in a N. H. regiment during the war. Several of these Connecticut Darbys were in the Continental Army. There was also a Derbyshire family from Groton, Mass., who dropped the 'shire' about the time that one or two of them moved to Connecticut, about 1720."

From "Records of Ye Congregational Church of Christ, Preston, Conn., Rev. Paul Park, Minister of the Gospel."

"Jedediah Darbee, of Lisbon, and Elizabeth Gore, of Preston, married 1789, Nov. 26.

Samuel Darbee and Sarah Atwood, married at Bridgwater, Sept. 13, 1764, at East Parish Church."

From the early Records of Weymouth, contained in New England Hist. and Geneo. Society's publications:

"Derby—Edward Derby married in Weymouth, Mass., first, Ruth, daughter of Simon Whitmarsh, about 1687. He married, second, Mrs. Rebecca (Sunner) Hobart, of Hingham, 1705. The early Records of Weymouth say that Edward Darbey was after banns Nov. 4, 1705. Edward Darby lived in Braintree in 1698 and Weymouth in 1712. He died Jan. 6, 1724. His will names his children Jonathan, Samuel, Rebecca and Ruth. Samuel was born May 1, 1689, and was living in 1724.

Derby—Edward Derby said to have been in Taunton, Mass., married Jane James in Hingham, Dec. 7, 1704. Died in Weymouth, June 8, 1716.

Darby—Samuel Darby, born May 1, 1689, was living in 1724.

Darby—Sarah Darby, born June 19, 1693, married William Dyer, Jr., of So. Weymouth, Nov. 13, 1714.

Darby—David Darby, born May 23, 1698 (Braintree Records), died Aug. 20, 1713.

Darby—Jonathan Darby married Ruth Shaw, of So. Weymouth, July 9, 1720.

Darby—Ruth Darby, born March 15, 1711, married Joseph Shaw, Jr., in Weymouth.

Darby—Rebecca Darby married Jonathan Blanchard July 23, 1729
—8 children.

Darby—Jane Darby married Samuel Blanchard July 22, 1727."

Notwithstanding the variations in the spelling of the surname, it is more than likely nearly all of the foregoing were more or less distantly related to Jedediah and Lucretia Cleveland Darbee. The lack of uniformity in the spelling means very little, since in times gone by people were indifferent regarding such matters, as many old tomb stones and ancient church and town records bear eloquent testimony. Apparently it was considered of no consequence if a letter was dropped from a name and one or more substituted, providing it did not alter the pronunciation. It would not, therefore, be entirely safe to assume that the name as generally spelled conforms to the original spelling. To this day there is no harmonious agreement regarding the matter; some branches of the family spell the name Darby and accent the first syllable, while others, and by far the greater number, spell it Darbee and accent the last syllable.
